The Imperial Guitar Quartet

Our featured group on the society program for February is the Imperial Guitar Quartet. Formed in 1992, its members are Christopher Stavovy, Shaun Dodson, Jeffery Baker, and Tim Evans. Stavovy is a customer service representative, and Baker is a computer analyst, while Dodson and Evans are full-time students. All are long-time classical guitar players who jointly have explored a wide range of music in the ensemble repertoire.

Jeffery Baker will not be able to join the group on this occasion because of a prior commitment, so the other members of the ensemble have put together an intriguing assortment of trio compositions by Vivaldi, Mozart, and Chopin, as well as Brazilian music. Each player will also perform a solo piece.

◆ D'Addario Concert

Guitar Trek Comes to D.C.

Guitar Trek, appearing on February 12 as part of the D'Addario Foundation concert series, features an unusual assortment of guitars. A standard guitar is joined by treble, bass, and baritone guitars built for the quartet. Because the combined range of these guitars is five rather than three octaves, the group can perform a wide variety of compositions.

Scheduled for the February concert are works by Dowland, Scarlatti, Brahms, and Milhaud, as well as the American debut of compositions by four Australian composers: Richard Charlton, Nigel Westlake, Phillip Houghton, and Graeme Koehne. Guitar Trek was formed in 1987. The most noted member of the group is Timothy Kain, head of the guitar department at the Canberra School of Music, where the quartet was established. Other artists in the ensemble are Carolyn Kidd, Mark Norton and Peter Constant, all of whom have won prestigious competitions.
